

An Insight into the Future of Man on Earth

Up to today the scientific world has not understood the concept of the conversion of magnetic and gravitational fields into created matter, so in the late 20th and early 21st centuries they created meaningless phrases such as "god particles" for these natural processes by which matters are created due to the interaction and the reduced or increased charge of different magnetic fields and gravitational fields, which we call their Magravs strength. It is these interactions that make any entities detectable to man according to his physical capacity for sensory and visual perception, which is governed by the Magravs strength of the amino-acid in human tissue in the Earth environment.

By calling the first sign of detectable matter in the plasma of the proton "the god particle", these misguided scientists have come up with a misconception like that in earlier centuries when scientists considered the Earth to be the centre of the universe.

According to this new fantasy principle of theirs, the body of man, the Earth and the Sun can be and are one of these god particles too, as they have manifested themselves in the matter state and are visible and detectable, but on a larger scale of field and matter contents.

What a pity that man takes so long to learn from his past misunderstandings and mistakes. Man's habit is to get absorbed in his fantasies and promote his mistaken ideas to the point where the topic under study and consideration becomes fascinating for small minded people of the time, although eventually in the course of his scientific endeavours and discoveries he realizes that his past thoughts were mistaken due to his lack of understanding of his own creation.

As man has matured intellectually and advanced technologically in past centuries, this has led him to make records of his environment and the actions of other men, initially on the walls of caves and then on the skin of animals and then on canvases and sheets of paper, and in the recent past with voice recordings and then films or tapes and more recently on microchips.

Thus man can easily understand that the inhabitants of the universe who are far more advanced technologically and intellectually than present humans and have been observers and passers-by of this planet for centuries, have made recordings of events and of all men's actions on this planet over millions of years, and in the near future they will play back all these recordings to the planet's inhabitants.

Then the so-called leaders of Earth will realise that observers have been recording the most significant events of this planet and their results over thousands of years for man to see, and they will show to the present generation of man what these so-called men of power on Earth have done for themselves and to and for their fellow men.

At the same time over the centuries the violent behaviour of the human race has been broadcast live across the universe to other creatures who exist there, in the same manner as the news is broadcast across planet Earth nowadays.

But the recordings made by these observers of Earth are more detailed and include not just the deeds but the thoughts that have instigated these misguided actions of so-called men of power.

If man knew what has been recorded of his actions in his scientific and humanitarian progress in past centuries by other beings of the universe who have witnessed it, then he would realise that most of his criminal acts of the past have also been recorded by the same intelligent creatures, who have passed by this planet and have recorded man's vainglorious notions of his insignificant existence.

These observers have recorded all man's injustices to other men and all of his fighting to possess meagre pieces of land and worthless earthly materialistic riches by the use of war and weapons.

As scientists observe the lives of animals in the jungle without interfering in them, these passengers of the universe have made recordings of how man has destroyed lives and nations by means of war, deception and theft.

They have recorded all the history and natural disasters of this planet and all these recordings have been played back across the universe for centuries to show how man lives on his little island of Earth in the oceans of the universe.

All these recordings are displayed across the universe showing the violence on this planet, and man is represented as the wild animal of all its creations.

I wonder if the leaders of men present and past and the so-called national rulers and religious leaders ever knew of these recordings of their inhumane deeds, misguided intentions and thoughts, while disguising their actions under different banners such as imposing world peace and promoting one nation or one religion and so forth.

These leaders of nations and religions will come to be ashamed of their dishonourable and disguised actions and intentions, as their work will soon be played back for all other people of the planet to see.

Then these men of deception will be shunned by the rest of humanity as the recordings of their true intentions are released in due course to the human race, and in time justice will be done to them for their vulture-like criminal actions disguised as the deeds of a dove.

The human race will see what they have inherited through the false actions of these men of weak aptitude whose misguided actions have diverted the course of progress for their race and their souls in all the realm of creation.

At the same time these recordings will reveal and never distort the actions of the true seekers and promoters of peace and unity of Earth within the universal community.

Thus in a short time man will see the true events of his past actions on his planet as shown to him by the recordings of other creations of the universe.

Thus what has been shown on man's television screens as violence in different regions of this tiny planet for abuse of colour and religion, and his greedy abuse of his fellow men for material gain of the worthless dust of this planet, all has been physically recorded in its true form and in due course the leaders of the earth, present and past, will be confronted with physical evidence and have to account for their deeds once these recordings are released for all to see.

In fact most men like their leaders show the same greedy behaviour as wild animals in the jungles and they carry out the same misdeeds on other men. Nowadays the so-called mass media broadcasts this behaviour as news of conflict and war on a daily basis, not knowing that the same news of this violent animal behaviour is being broadcast across the universe by other intelligences.

Similarly as men of integrity shun violence and violent behaviour towards their fellow creatures, and as decent men keep themselves away from drunken and unruly brawls in the street to show that they have nothing to do with this unacceptable behaviour, the universal community have done the same with respect to the human race, and have shunned the human race as the untamed animals of the universe that they have wanted nothing to do with up to now, although they did on certain occasions in the past.

This has been the status quo up to now but this will change from now on with the release of new technology.

Thus in time, when man realizes that all the actions, whether of a normal man or of the so-called leaders of the so-called nations of Earth or of religions, have been recorded and broadcast and displayed across the universe as the actions of the wild creatures of the universe, the man of wisdom will understand why man considers himself in his simple mind to be the only creation in the universe. That is why the scientific world has been looking in vain for life in the universe, since the rest of universal community has avoided man due to his animal behaviour rather than choosing to make his acquaintance.

I wonder how man will change his behaviour when he sees what of his thoughts or his actions has been recorded by the other creations of the universe. At that point, men of integrity will see how the leaders of the nations of Earth have caused so much suffering and betrayed others to gain a meagre worthless pittance. With the present habits of the people of this planet, true leaders will be like gold dust.

Then my cry is to be ashamed of being born in the skin of such a creation, this is the cry of the author and would be the cry of the true men of peace of the present and future of this planet.

Shame on men who thought and think that their criminal brainwaves in their empty skulls and the deeds arising from these forsaken criminal thoughts have never been recorded, and who carry on living the same false fancy lives, never suspecting that their records will be open to all sooner than they could imagine.

The real history of man will in due course be played live for future generations for all to see by the space travellers of the universe, and then I wonder if dwellers on Earth and their so-called leaders will be proud to be of this race and planet.

It is sad to think how long it will take for man to be mature enough in his thoughts, behaviour and deeds not only to create a peaceful earth community but to be able to join the tranquil community already existing in the universe.
